Senator Oliver Beards

Senator George Pittsburg accepted the challenge of the Rev. Charles E. McClellan, issued a few days ago, that Pennsylvania had no senator whom he might call to his pulpit. He went into the pulpit, that in the Fairhill Baptist church, and gave definite answers to seventeen questions by the pastor. The senator was cheered by the congregation, which is largely made up of persons living in the textile district of the city.

He said the laboring men should organize to gain by proper means the best wages their employers could afford to pay; that employ-ers and employes should submit to arbitration before strikes were declared; that good wages could be paid only when business prosperous; that he feared the Democratic tariff would cause industrial depression, and that all that could be done was to "wait and see."

The congregation applauded when the senator declared in favor of local option and again when he came out for woman suffrage. He disclaimed any connection with the Oliver steel mills in Pittsburg, and added that no matter what might be the conditions in the mills "it is not fair play to charge it against me.

"The attacks against the owners of the plant," he added earnestly, "are mendacious and malicious. I dare say that if I were not in public life nothing would be said about them."

The senator announced that he would not be a candidate for reelection. The initiative, referendum and recall he denounced.

ORANGE WANTS SOLID BRIDGE

May Put Concrete Structure Over Creek, Jointly With

County

Orange News: A petition, signed by 101 persons, asking the trustees to call an election for the purpose of voting on bonds for the purpose of constructing a reinforced concrete bridge and protecting wall on East Chapman avenue across Santiago creek was presented last evening at the meeting of the city board. The board granted the petition and in-structed the street committee to interview the supervisors in regard to the construction of its share of such a bridge and also to consult a bridge architect as to probable cost and desirable type, and to report its findings as soon as possible.

In the discussion of the petition the general view was developed that a retaining wall should be built both for the protection of the bridge and of the city. It was declared that, under preserved. ent conditions, the creek in high water might break its banks at Chapman avenue and spread water generally west and south through the town, as it has done upon a previous occasion.

The opinion was held that a three arch bridge of sufficient span to easily carry the current in flood should be built. It was thought that the city's share would be about two-thirds of the bridge. The city has been assured that the county will co-operate when the city desires to put in a bridge.

The annual water rate ordinance was taken up and passed to second reading. The principal change intro-duced was the reduction in the price of water, which was fixed at $1.25 for of water, which was fixed at $1.25 for 1000 feet. The present rate is $1.25 for 700 feet. The new ordinance will also provide for a rate of $1.10 on the second thousand, $1 per thousand on from 2000 to 3500 feet and 90 cents per thousand above 3500 feet. The rate to consumers outside the city was raised to $2.50 for 700 feet, it being at present $2.00 for 700 feet.

The city clerk and chairman were authorized to sign an application to the railroad commission approving the proposed rate of 75 cents per 1000 cubic feet for the mixture of natural and artificial gas which the Southern Counties Gas Company proposes to

THE BOOK SECTION REVIEWS "NEW ALIGNMENT OF LIFE"

The Book Review Section of the Ebell Club met last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tedford to listen to a review of Ralph Waldo Trine's book, entitled "The New Alignment of Life" given by Mr. L. P. Hickox.

Speaking first of the author, the reviewer said that he was a western man, graduated from Knox College and later a post graduate student at Johns Hopkins College.

He has written "What All the World is Seeking," "In Tune With the Infinite," and recently the subject of the present review.

While his first books dealt with the elements that go to make up health and happiness, his last work deals with the definition of the differences existing between the old-time theology and the newer conceptions of those principles that have become crystalized into downers.

ciples that have become crystalized into dogmas.

Mr. Hickox graphically contrasted the old theology with the new in a series of fifteen paragraphs taken from the book and lettered upon large charts so that all his auditors could see. These paragraphs which are given below, embody the principal teachings of the book.

Inspiration, a voice from without. Two orders in the universe, natural and supernatural.

Truth, a fixed thing-static.

The death of Jesus, the important

Truth, a growing developing thing.

Seeks to save men for life. Emphasizes more abundant life

The reviewer said further in his interpretation and extracts from the author, that the disposition of the age was to focus attention upon the life that now is, rather than the hereafter; that Jesus' sayings contain their own authority, while former prophets were wont to use the expressions "it is said" or "it is written," accepting thus old Jewish dogmas; that Jesus claimed no supernatural power but asserted that the Lord worked through him; that he did not claim unusual birth.

It was brought out that the Pauline writings were produced before the Gospels and that the latter were undoubtedly influenced by the Romanized religion of the former; that Paul being much better educated that the other disciples and a Roman citizen embued with prevalent Greek philosophy and imperialistic tendencies wrote at a variance with the simple democratic teachings of Jesus to his fishermen disciples.

A most significant saying of the author was that we believe dogmas no natter how incredible because we have been taught them from childhood and this teaching repeated from generation unto generation. In geography or geology the child is not taught what was held to be true in 1413 and why should be be taught the religion of five centuries ago?

In the discussion that followed the review, a clear comprehensive definition of "truth" was sought and it developed that this was no easy thing to do. At the March meeting to be held on the second Tuesday, Ernest Crozier Phillips will review Maurice Maeterlink's "Bluebird," taking the place of Mrs.

His net returns from the four acres, improved with 7-year-old Valencias, was $2600 last season. Yesterday Henry Neff of St. Clareville, O., purchased this same four acres for $12,500. Los Angeles Produce Market
Strange as it may seem, the price on cranberries has been coming down instead of going up, and at present instead of going up, and at present this fruit is selling for less possibly than at any time in the season. The berries still on hand are coming from storage, and are fair stock. The demand for them since the holidays has been decreasing instead of increasing. which accounts for the drop to $12.50 which accounts for the drop to $12.50 per barrel on fair quality of the fruit. The rain just about killed off all the growing strawberries, and destroyed many of the blossoms on the plants, so that this berry is scarce and high so that this berry is scarce and high priced, if at all obtainable. The average quotation is 15 cents a basket. The only other small fruit in this class now obtainable, but not at all popular is the guava. The price on guavas has been the same for years, from 3 to 5 cents a basket, owing to the fact that so few persons in Los Angeles are acquainted with its fine flavor. Butter also came down with eggs. The drop was only 1 cent, making the quotation on creamery extra 26 cents.
